

In my first book series, Natural Cures, which sold over ten million copies, I exposed the pharmaceutical industry. Because of what I printed, the drug companies feared losing profits, and they lashed out at me with a vengeance. I have been the object of false accusations, of lawsuits, even death threats. I don't care. I will not back down. I know in my heart what is right. If you have not read any of my previous books, you need to know what I am all about.

Twenty years ago, I used to be an overly ambitious young man, desiring nothing more than wealth. And you know what? I achieved it. Now, because of all that I have been through in my life, and because of all the letters and testimonials from the thousands of readers who have been helped, I am on a mission, and my mission has nothing to do with making money. It is always easier for someone who has money to say that, I know, but wealth is not my objective. I have reached a point in my life that I need to do things that I believe have a positive impact on individuals and society. The mission of my books, newsletters, and website, my entire business enterprise, is simple: We positively impact the whole person. That includes doing things that I believe are beneficial to a person's physical health, emotional well-being, intellectual endeavors, personal fulfillment, and financial health. All aspects of our health are interrelated. I have spent years dealing with physical health, and now I feel compelled to focus on another aspect in society that needs the hot white light to be shined down upon it. Besides a person's physical health, what is usually our number one concern? That's right. Money. Our financial health.

Get Mama Happy Again

Everyone who has ever had financial problems knows what I am talking about. The old saying, "If mama ain't happy, ain't nobody happy," can be twisted to say, "If money is a problem, everything is a problem." The constant stress eats away at all areas of our life. We can't sleep. We are distracted at work, which can cause problems with our employers. We can't eat, or we eat too much and do harm to our bodies. We snap
