

at our children and argue with our spouses. Because of our monetary situation, family and work are affected and everyone suffers. Pressures mount until we feel our whole life is a house of cards that is going to tumble to the floor at any second. Those who have a debt hanging over their heads know exactly what I am talking about.

Consumer debt is an epidemic in our country. Every one of us is affected by it. Anyone who has ever taken out a loan or opened a credit card account is affected. If you are holding this book, I imagine you fall into that category. The consumer lending industry is taking advantage of the American public, and it touches all of us, regardless of your gender, your race, your age, your status, your religion, or your income. This is one case where Uncle Sam is pointing his finger at all of us, and he is saying, “I want you.” The banks and lenders are standing behind him, rubbing their hands together in greedy anticipation.

The good news for you is that basically everything you need to know to get off the merry-go-round of credit card scams and lending industry abuse is right here in this book. This book is going to help millions of people lower their payments and get out of debt very, very quickly.
