

How about the fact that thirty states filed suit against the big bucks credit card banks for their ludicrous ways, and the federal government of these states stood by the credit card banks! Debt collection agencies have also become an empire. They think they are above the law. It takes 100 attorneys to handle all the complaints filed against these guys and yet the government does not step in and tighten the laws!

You do not have to sit still for the squeeze!

It really is a sad, sad world.

Last Option

Instead of thinking bankruptcy is the only option, consider it a last option. I understand the temptation. You had a string of bad luck and now you are saddled with debt. Your marriage is crumbling, your health is shaky, and those medical bills are already overwhelming; you don't want more! It can seem that bankruptcy is the only way out.

You are not alone in your thinking. Millions of people file for bankruptcy. America is supposed to be a nation of wealth, and look how many of our citizens are throwing their hands up in the air and filing for bankruptcy.

As far as the banks and credit card companies were concerned, too many people were filing for bankruptcy. Why did they care? They weren't getting paid their fees! So the bankers went to their buddies in the government, and in 2005, the federal government made it more difficult for people to file for bankruptcy. That's what friends are for.

No Relief

Talk to those who have filed bankruptcy; they will tell you life is not "easy street." They have a black mark on the credit report now, and the predators sweep in like vultures to pick their bones. These folks are targeted now as a "poor credit risk;" the banks can't wait to charge them high interest rates for the "favor" of working with them.
