

I have been a long-standing good customer and I always pay my bills. Now the monthly payment is so high, I can't pay my utilities and my car insurance." Whatever your exact beef is, spell it out. Give dates, rates, dollars; present your complaint professionally and cordially.

You can be bold. The person in Washington was elected by you to represent you. Let him or her know that you are fully aware of the lobbyists and the campaign contributions. You can point blank ask what they have received from the lobbyists and credit card companies.

Don't be intimidated. Tell them you want regulation of the credit card industry, and that you want to see how they vote on banking and credit card issues. Express your opinion that the terms of the credit card companies need to be fully disclosed. They should not be able to sneak in a rate hike. They should not be able to keep raising fees either.

Lastly, make sure you mention that you will be voting in the next election and your vote goes to the person who will take a stand against the banks and the credit card industry.

Just Do It!

Your actions matter. Bringing this issue to their attention is worth your time and effort. If we want things to change, we have to do something about it. By not complaining, we are letting the credit card industry, and the federal government, get away with it.

Contact your elected officials in Washington! Spread the word to everyone you know and have them do the same. Most everyone has an issue where they have been wronged by their credit card company. Send a quick email to your senator and representative, telling them about it. If you have a specific serious complaint, tell your attorney general!

Universal Default...

The scam of universal default is extensive throughout much of the consumer lending industry, and an area that many people are shocked about when it happens to them. Beware: if you are in default with one credit card or lender, you could then be zapped by your others.

Congress has let the banks and credit card companies go unchecked for too long. They devise whatever methods they can to get more fees.
