

Debt Elimination

If I had to choose one favorite Debt Cures method, this would be it. The very idea of 100% debt elimination is such a motivator and an emotional shot in the arm. I would predict that before you read this book, 99% of all readers had no idea that this was even possible. I hope that 100% of all readers will now tell everyone they know.

If your best friend has thousands of dollars of debt that they could be rid of completely, entirely, every single penny, FOREVER – they need to know about this method!

Maybe it is you with the old debt and the bad-tempered collection agent, making you irritable. Don't get ornery. Get even. It only takes one sentence: The statute of limitations is gone. Agencies try to collect on bogus debts all the time. But now we know better. This solution gives you a double prize. You have no debt to pay and you get the satisfaction that the malicious debt collector does not make a single dime off of you.

Or, if the alleged debt is not expired, simply tell them to mail all the information on this alleged debt, because you are not sure if it is yours. You do not want to pay a debt that is not yours. Some debt collectors are not always trustworthy, so you need to protect yourself.

Debt Reduction

Okay, I have yet another favorite. Debt Cures teaches you to use financial statements as a tool to reduce your debt drastically. Debt Cures is not about debt consolidation. That technique rolls everything into one sum, but it is all still there. Debt Cures is about debt elimination and debt reduction and self-empowerment! Okay, I will put down my megaphone and pom poms, but this is great information, and it is worth getting excited about.

By simply drafting very basic financial statements, or a simple two-sentence letter from your CPA, you have the most powerful tool to show the real score. And you are the victor. Prepare a simple balance sheet and an income statement that shows your net worth, and your true ability to repay your debt. Follow the outlined formula to success by tactfully showing in concrete professional statements what you have,
