

Building More Wealth

“No one is destined to live a life without wealth.”

~ S. Ross Ingram

You already have many wealth-building techniques under your belt. Every step you take to reduce or eliminate your debt is a step towards building wealth. Take these ideas and build on them.

You have learned that you can pay the same amount of money toward your home mortgage every month, but if you break up those payments into weekly installments, you will save thousands of dollars and slash many years off paying that debt. Amazing, simple, and a great step to building wealth. Use the same technique to pay off your student loans! Your car loans! Any bank loans! Just be sure that there is no prepayment penalty, and you are on the way to debt-free living!

Use Your Power for Good

The ability to borrow is power, and you have the power; not the banks, not the credit card companies. Make them work for you. We have seen that they are eager to attack, so your credit needs to be handled wisely. They want you to misuse your credit. They want a piece of you every month, month after month after month. The lenders and credit
