

The government has looked the other way while the credit card companies and banks have pilfered money out of your pocket, and no one is going to knock on your door to tell you that this money is available. But now you know. It is up to you to make the effort to get it.

Found Money

With www.grants.gov, the search process through the maze of federal grants out there has been connected into one big site where you have to enter your information just once. One congressman commented, “I’m often asked where people can go to get the necessary federal grant money.

The government has looked the other way while
the credit card
companies and
banks have pilfered
money out of your pocket...

The resource I always mention first is Grants.gov.” You can look at grants by agency name or by category. It is amazing how much government money is out there and available, and very few people know it.

You can become aware of grants and sources that you would not have known about. If you just want to browse through the grants, you do not have to register. If you want to apply for a grant, you will need to register. Follow the instructions on the website. They also provide a user guide for you at www.grants.gov/assets/GDG_AppUserGuide_0207.pdf.

There are also many programs through the Small Business Administration that you should not overlook. These are not all grants, but loans with very good interest rates and easy terms. Probably one of the best loans you could ever get.

Don’t overlook all the foundations and private sources that provide various funds. See: www.foundationcenter.org/getstarted/individuals/ or www.fundsnetservices.com or www.kn.pacbell.com/products/grants/locate.html. Hundreds of possibilities are at your fingertips.