Now, let me direct your attention toward another excellent credit that many people don't know about. It's known as the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), and it was designed for working low-income people who don't have a lot of money to spare when it comes to income taxes. If you qualify for the EITC, you might be surprised to see how substantially your income taxes are reduced. Not only that, but in some cases, you might even receive a refund! Not only does the amount of credit you receive have to do with your income, but it is also determined by the size of your family. If you are married, filing jointly, with two or more qualifying children, you can receive up to $4,716 in credit!

To find out if you qualify, go to www.irs.gov. From there, download Form W-5 and Publication 96. You can call 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676) to request that these items be sent by mail as well.

Ever heard of enterprise zones? Some states use the name "empowerment zone" or "renewal communities." Basically, by operating your business in a prescribed location and hiring employees from a target area or population, you could get big tax breaks! By working with your community to develop the local economy, you are helping to revitalize your area, and you may be eligible for tremendous tax dollar savings. These programs offer billions of dollars in tax savings!

Almost all 50 states offer these programs! For example, California has 42 enterprise zones across the state. Florida has 56, and Colorado has 18 with ten different tax credits for doing business in those zones. By hiring your workers from the specified zone or population, or starting or expanding your business in certain rural or urban areas, you can reap the reward of huge dollars that stay with you and your business instead of being paid in state taxes.

Do a computer search for your state's enterprise zones to get information regarding what areas are included, what paperwork you need
