

to fill out, and what tax credits are available to you. Creating jobs and investing in the community is a win-win deal.

The federal government may also have tax incentives for doing business in certain zones. For further information, and to see if your address qualifies, go to <http://www.hud.gov/economicdevelopment/index.cfm>.

You don't have to be in an enterprise zone to take advantage of other tax credits – there are many available. The federal Work Opportunity tax credit allows any company in the U.S. to take tax breaks if certain employees are hired, and it can be $2400 per new employee. There is the Welfare to Work credit, which allows a credit of up to $8500 if you hire someone who receives federal assistance. You may be able to receive a $4000 credit for hiring certain Native Americans.

States offer

as well.

States offer many credits as well. Wages to qualified employees can save you up to $10,000 in taxes. There generally are property tax credits and sales tax and use tax credits available as well. It is to your advantage to check out the web pages for your county and state, and to check out companies that specialize in tax credits (for example, www.taxcreditcompany.com or www.ntcgtax.com).

The list of tax credits is long. Really long. Odds are you are eligible for something. You can take a look at www.irs.gov or talk to the person who does your taxes or look for a tax credit company to help you ferret out everything you've got coming. Tax credits are free money, and can be big money, and you deserve what is rightfully yours. If you qualify, take that tax credit!

It Works

It is smart to take advantage of every opportunity that comes your way, and if the government programs can help out the likes of well-known millionaires and billionaires, and huge companies like Chrysler, you should feel free to take what is there. It was not all that long ago that Chrysler was facing financial ruin. Chrysler did not want to file bankruptcy and
