

Identity Theft

It is sad to say, but identity theft is the way of the world. No matter where you live, you have to be cautious at all times. The bad guys are everywhere and getting craftier everyday. Take all the steps previously discussed to safeguard your financial information. Review your credit report. Credit monitoring is a good idea as well, and is available through the credit reporting agencies in Canada also.

If you are a Canadian resident and you find a suspicious item on your credit report, or if you know that you have been the victim of identity theft, contact the fraud department of your credit bureau immediately.
