

Guard It

In Canada, the equivalent to the Social Security Number in America is the Social Insurance Number. If you suspect that your SIN is being used by another person, to get a job or in any way, contact Human Resources Development Canada right away.

Everyone Values Privacy

Canada has privacy protection laws, as does the United States. The Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA) is the privacy law to protect the personal information of Canadian citizens.

If you feel an organization is not properly handling your private information or you want to file a complaint, do so at the following address. The website address is for information purposes. Complaints or any private information should not be e-mailed.

Also if you contact the credit reporting agency and they do not respond within 30 days, it is considered a “denial of request” and you can write the Privacy Commissioner a formal complaint.

Canadians get their share of junk mail too. If you want to “opt out” of marketing offers, contact the Canadian Marketing Service. They are the keepers of the Canadian version of the “do not call” list, but they are not a government organization. They are a private trade association, funded by members, and they offer the Do Not Contact Service free of charge to Canadian consumers. By registering with them, you will significantly reduce the number of mail offers and telephone calls. By
