

But first, without any further delay, let's discuss the secrets, and the debt cures, that they don't want you to know. With this technique, amounts don't matter. If you have ten or twenty or thirty thousand dollars in credit card debt, you can completely wipe out that debt.

Statute of Limitations on Debt

The secret technique to completely wipe out debt

Once upon a time, you had debt that you could not pay. The creditor wrote it off as uncollectible. Now, out of the blue, you are being harassed for that debt. It is bad enough to be bothered by a debt collector, but to be hounded for something that you believed to be ancient history is doubly annoying. If you are being pestered by someone for old debts, then more than likely you have come across what is called a scavenger debt collector. Or actually, they have come across you.

Scavenger debt collectors purchase bundles of dated debt (which probably can't be collected on) for incredibly low prices. These collectors buy low and hope to collect high. They have very little invested; therefore, they have the opportunity to make big profits. And they will do basically whatever it takes to get those profits. They don't care if their method is unethical or something that would make their dear old granny cry or give 'em a swat with the broom. In the scum-filled pond of bottom dwellers, these guys are even lower than the regular debt collectors. Who knew?

You can tell the debt collector to get lost!

Pay attention to the next sentence: Paying a debt that is too old is NOT required of you. How old is too old? That depends upon your state's statute of limitations period, or "expiration date." I'll list them later in this chapter so you know what your state enforces. Every state has different laws, but it can be as early as three years!

If you have a debt that was written off six years ago and there has been no activity on your credit report for the debt since then, you are probably free of that debt forever.