

scavengers, of course, will not tell you this. They want your money! Even if they have no legal right to collect it!

Tell your friends! Tell your family! Tell your neighbors, your aunts, your uncles, your cousins! Tell the babysitter, and tell your co-workers! Don't be duped! These scavenger debt collectors are getting rich off of unsuspecting citizens. They buy up these old debts for close to nothing and are trying to get people to pay in full, plus interest! It is a highly profitable business and growing. Two of these "investment companies" have even made the Fortune 500 list.

What to Expect

Miranda had an old credit card debt of $3000. She had gone through some trying times and simply did not have the money to pay it. Miranda's husband had left her. Not only that, but she had a new baby, along with a part-time job that just wasn't cutting it. Times were tough. She had no means to pay back that $3000, which accumulated due to purchases her husband made and stuck her with. He had used a lot of her credit cards without her knowing, but that is another story. When the credit card company could not collect from her way back when, they turned it over to collections, which also could not collect. The credit card company wrote off the account. Now fast forward a few years. Miranda has forgotten all about it, but the credit card company has sold this $3000 debt to a scavenger debt collection firm for about $200. The aptly named scavenger will now, after all this time, put the squeeze on Miranda for the whole $3000, along with the interest too! If greed handed out prizes, the scavenger debt collectors would win the blue ribbon.

Miranda did not have to pay her debt!

Lucky for Miranda, she knows the Debt Cures methods and knows exactly what to expect and how to avoid the trap. The scavengers know these old debts are the hardest debts to collect, so accordingly, they play hardball. Don't let them scare you!

If you get a call from one of these scavenger debt collectors, they will try to buffalo you into believing that they are a lawyer or work for
