

Cut Your Rate!

"You never know unless you ask!"

~ Kevin Trudeau

I may get harassed, and be the subject of occasional verbal abuse, but I am a simple guy. I like to tell it like it is, in simple language, so that other guys and gals, like me, understand what is going on.

Other people, like the big corporate moneybags, might have a problem with that. And that is exactly what it is – their problem.

It always amazes me that the whistleblower is the one that catches the most heat. The guys doing the dirty deeds want to cast suspicion away from their wrongdoings. They are pretty good at it. The credit card companies have mastered the technique of bait-and-switch. They bait you with a low teaser interest rate and then switch your rate to double or triple that, without you knowing.

Isn't that "Special"?

Their excuse? "We can." They are not breaking any laws. Their reason? "We're special." And actually, right there, they are telling the truth. They are special. The laws and regulations are tied up in a pretty green bow with dollar signs, just for them. When the president of a major credit card company, which is a profit leader of the big credit card companies, has a little party at his house for a few hundred of his
