

National Foundation for Consumer Credit Counseling (www.nfcc.org or 800-388-2227) to make sure that they are reputable.

Break Free

We all have heard the FDR presidential inaugural address sound bite, “We have nothing to fear but fear itself.” When most people find themselves tangled up in a web of debt, that is the emotion that takes control of them – fear. They fear collection agencies hounding them day and night, they fear losing their house or having their car repossessed, and they fear losing their job. It is an awful way to live. Fear makes some people take rash action, like filing for bankruptcy; for others, fear paralyzes them. They do nothing, and they let the predators sweep in, killing them with interest rate increases and outrageous fees.

Being in debt can be overwhelming. Getting it under control merely requires taking a deep breath and taking a step-by-step process. Most of the time, when people are feeling stress, it is because they don’t know what to do. Debt Cures shows you what to do.

The banks and credit card companies and financial institutions do not own you. Follow the steps previously outlined. Make the calls. Negotiate. They will take you from fear to control. The greatest of all fears is the fear of the unknown, and we have dispelled that fear.

Remember Jocelyn, our reader who took a $33,800 debt and negotiated it to less than $6,000? She states that all she did was use the proven techniques in this book, and it saved her financial life: “If you work the book, it will work for you.”

Another satisfied reader, Dave, wrote in, “Knowledge isn’t power, only APPLIED knowledge is power.” He has a delightful way of stating what I believe: “If you want to stay in debt...and want to stay fat, cranky and in generally poor health, then don’t read books.” A man after my own heart, and I’m glad he is a reader of my books. Dave adds: “Apply what you learn. You won’t be sorry.”

I couldn’t have said it better myself!