

Fighting Back

"Truth is generally the best vindication against slander."

~ Abraham Lincoln

Abraham Lincoln also said, "How many legs does a dog have if you call the tail a leg? Four; calling the tail a leg doesn't make it a leg."

The whole purpose of my life is enlightenment. I live to enlighten people and expose the truth. Why should telling the truth be any cause for alarm? There is no valid reason why I should be lambasted for explaining how the consumer lending industry really works. When there are good things to expose, I do so gladly. I find that wonderful, and I am over the moon. I delight in sharing good news. On the other side of the coin, when things are not so good, I believe that it is my mission to reveal the situation for what it really is.

And yes, I admit, fighting back feels good.

They Fight Dirty

Sometimes it is mind-boggling what the credit card companies, the banks, the payday loan companies, the mortgage brokers, and the lending institutions will do. A very poor woman and her mentally-handicapped son had trouble making their house payment. The lender allegedly convinced them to sign the papers on a new loan that they could not afford and now they may lose their house. The fully-grown son did not
