

UNDERSTANDING BUD and SANDI

Bud Hawkins was a responsible person who tried to better himself and provide his family with a comfortable lifestyle. He came from a relatively poor background—the family never seemed to have enough money, and what there was had to stretch to accommodate a big family—where he was pretty much left to fend for himself. When he finished high school he found a job, and saved as much money as he could. After two years he started at a junior college in his hometown, continuing to work.

While he was in college, he had worked nearly full-time in the evenings and on weekends. He wasn't a straight-A student, but he made fairly good grades. He was sure he could have done even better if he had had more time to study.

Bud and Sandi met when he was at the state university, completing his last two years of college. They were married during his last year in school. They had a nice off-campus condominium her parents had bought her when she went to college.
