

Fine-tuning of ChatGPT

Fine-tuning is the difference between a tailored suit and a mass-produced suit. A mass-produced suit is often cheap and conveniently available. However, to get a suit tailored, you must first decide the look. For some occasions, you may want a casual, breezy suit, and for some occasions, you may want a sharp, fitted suit with matching accessories.

In that case, you must also choose the colours after considering your complexion and hair colour. Then, based on where you live and how long you plan on wearing the suit, you must choose the right fabric for each piece. Once all this is done, you must find a skilled tailor, give him your measurements, and wait until they are done.

This painstaking effort is duly rewarded. You get a suit made just for you. It is built to accentuate your features without wearing you down. The sleeves will sit just right, the waist tapers elegantly, and the jacket contours to the chest.
