Sure, here are the key points summarized from the report:

1. Weak Start in 2024: As anticipated, the year began with a 19% year-on-year decline in net sales in constant currency. This impacted profitability in network businesses but was offset by deals in Nokia Technologies, leading to an improvement in operating margin year-on-year.
2. Improved Order Intake in Network Infrastructure (NI): NI witnessed a positive trend in order intake, showing year-on-year growth, with a book-to-bill ratio above 1 in the quarter. Confidence is expressed in a stronger second half for NI, expecting a return to growth for the full year.
3. Cost Reduction Program Progress: Progress is being made in executing the cost reduction program, targeting EUR 500 million of in-year savings in 2024.
4. Conclusion of Smartphone Renewal Cycle → Nokia Technologies: Three significant smartphone licensing deals were signed in Q1, marking the end of the smartphone renewal cycle. No major

Certainly, here's a simplified version of the slide for new investors:

Key Points for New Investors:

1. Starting Off Slow: At the beginning of 2024, we saw a decrease in sales as expected, mainly in our network businesses. However, thanks to deals in Nokia Technologies, our profitability improved compared to last year.
2. Growth in Orders: Our Network Infrastructure division saw an increase in orders compared to last year, which is a good sign for future growth. We're confident that this division will bounce back and grow throughout the year.
3. Saving Money: We're actively working on reducing costs, aiming to save EUR 500 million this year.
