

Deep learning, an advanced form of ML, employs neural networks to mimic human thinking. This capability is what powers Generative AI, enabling it to produce new content rather than merely analysing existing data.

