

Weekly Work Plan

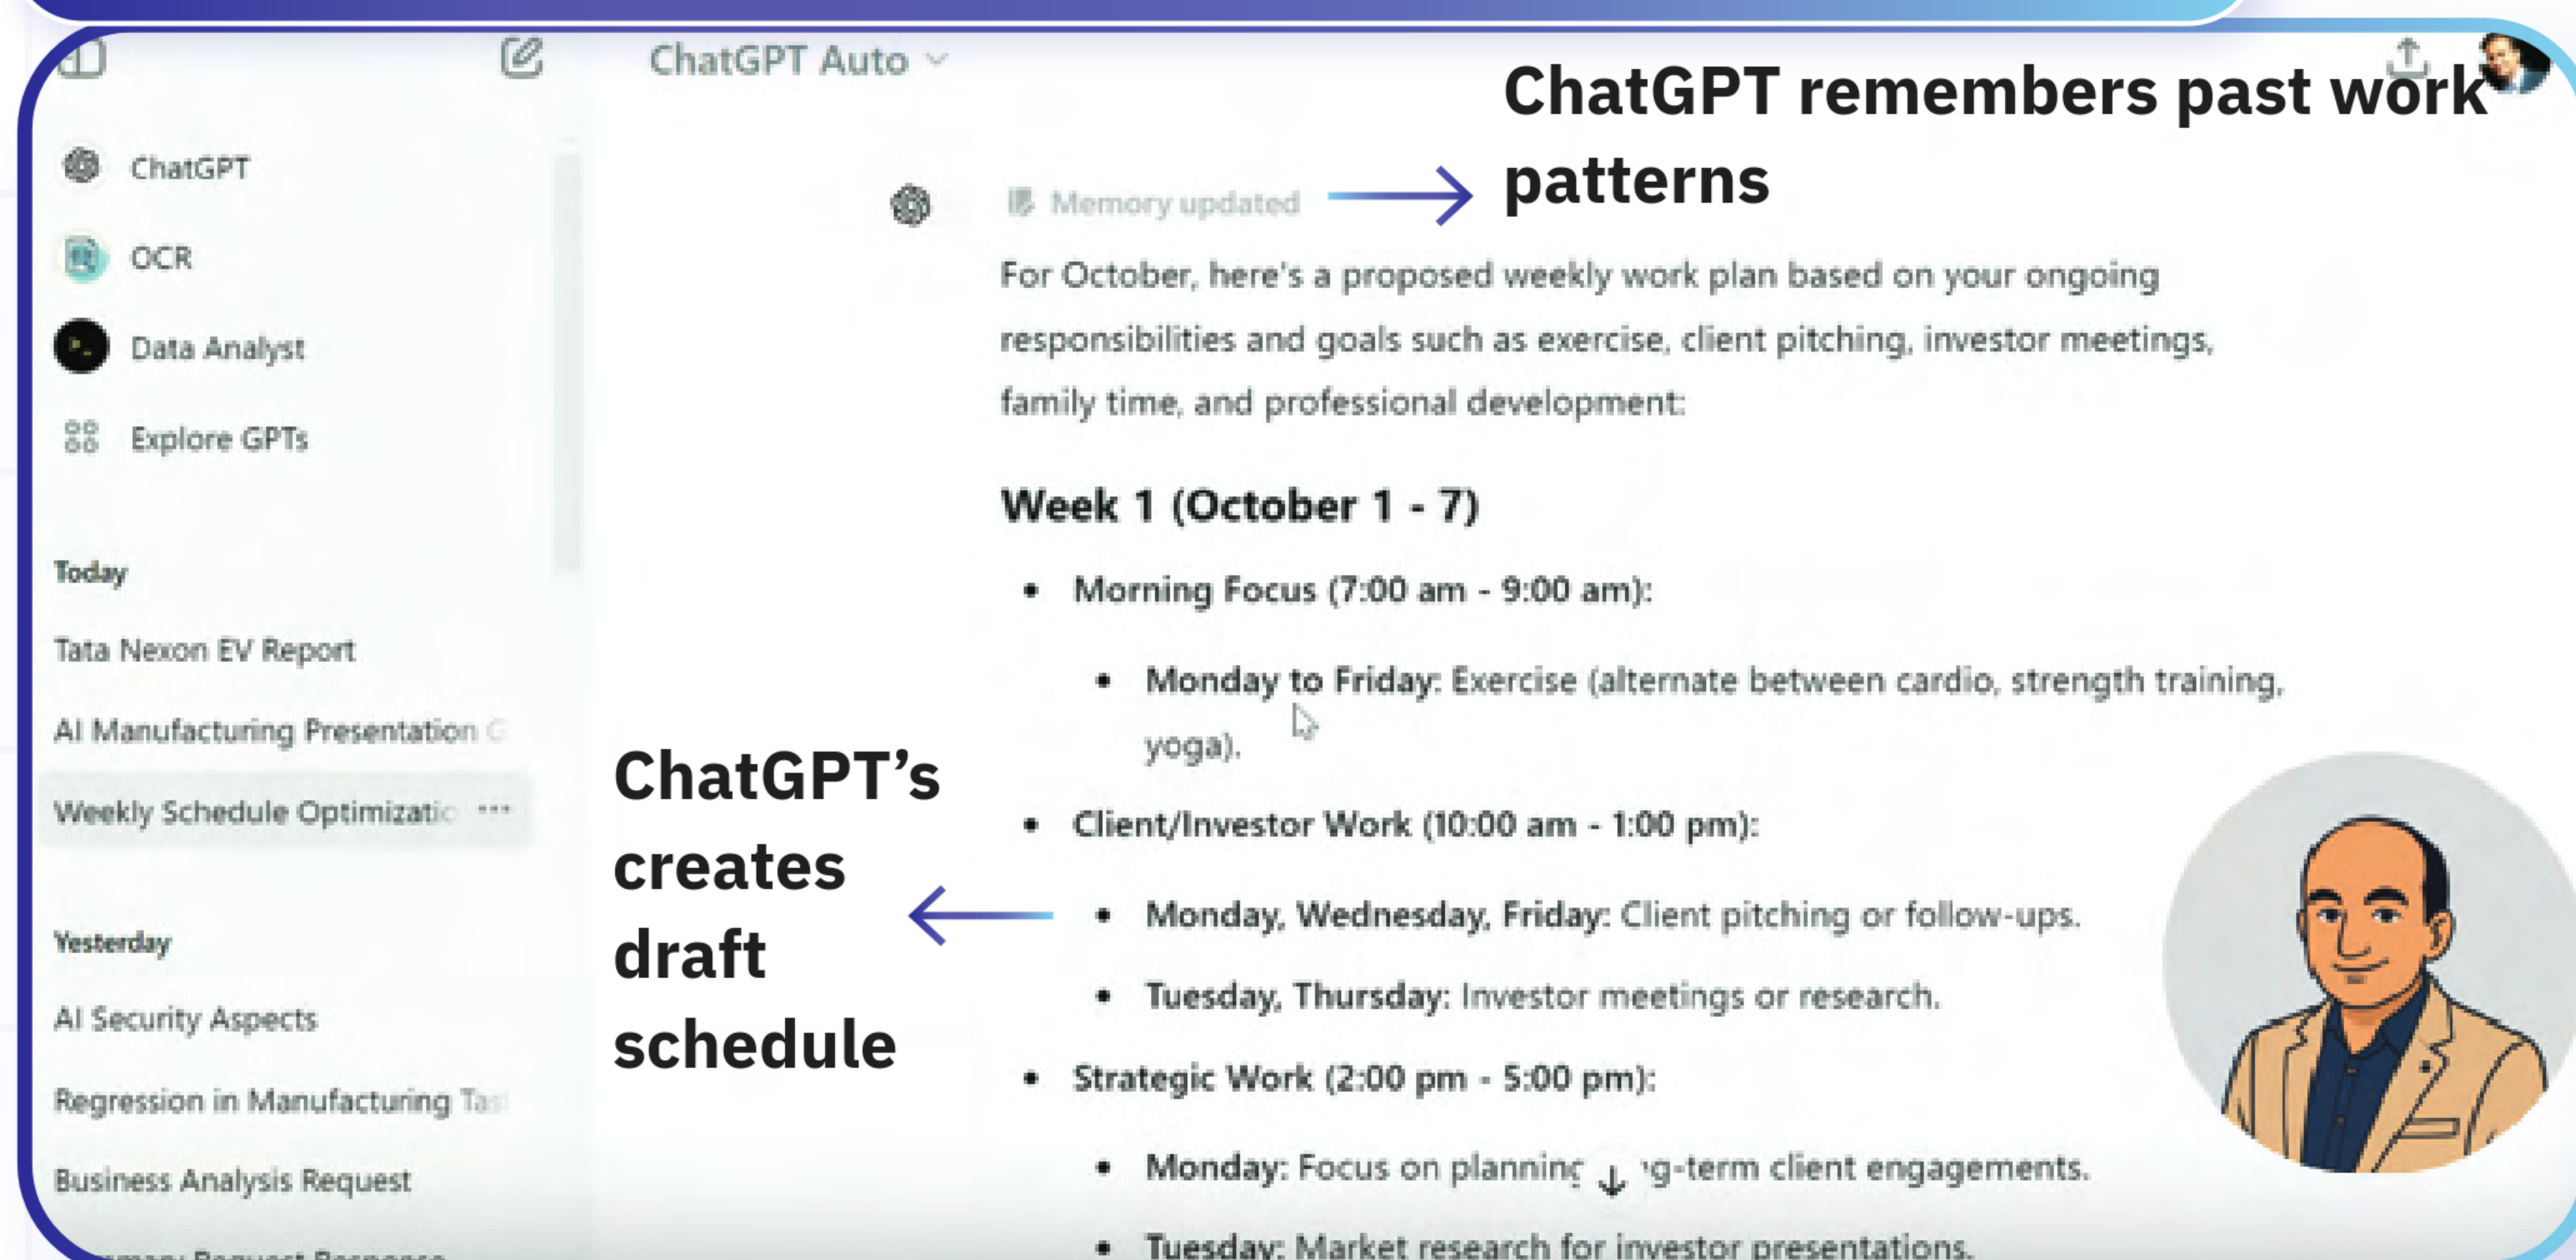

You opened the ChatGPT window for scheduling and calendar management to build a weekly work plan. First, you need to give ChatGPT a bit of context. You told it your goals for the upcoming week, such as tasks related to content development or meetings.

Once you input this, ChatGPT will process your preferences and generate a draft schedule. You should start your Monday with content creation in the morning, a break for personal time in the afternoon, and an evening review of the recorded materials.

Tuesday might involve recording the next module and fitting in an investor meeting in the afternoon, then winding down with leisure time and a course review in the evening.

ChatGPT will process preferences and generate a draft schedule.

You can fine-tune this draft as you go. If you decide to keep Fridays free or dedicate Saturdays to personal time, you will prompt ChatGPT with these adjustments, and it will update the schedule accordingly.