

Typically, AI is of two types- descriptive and discriminative models. Suppose we train a model on images of cats and dogs. We had to give lots of data to the machine, and based on some pattern recognition, the machine could tell whether it was a dog or a cat. It is called a discriminative model because it can classify between two objects.

DISCRIMINATIVE MODEL

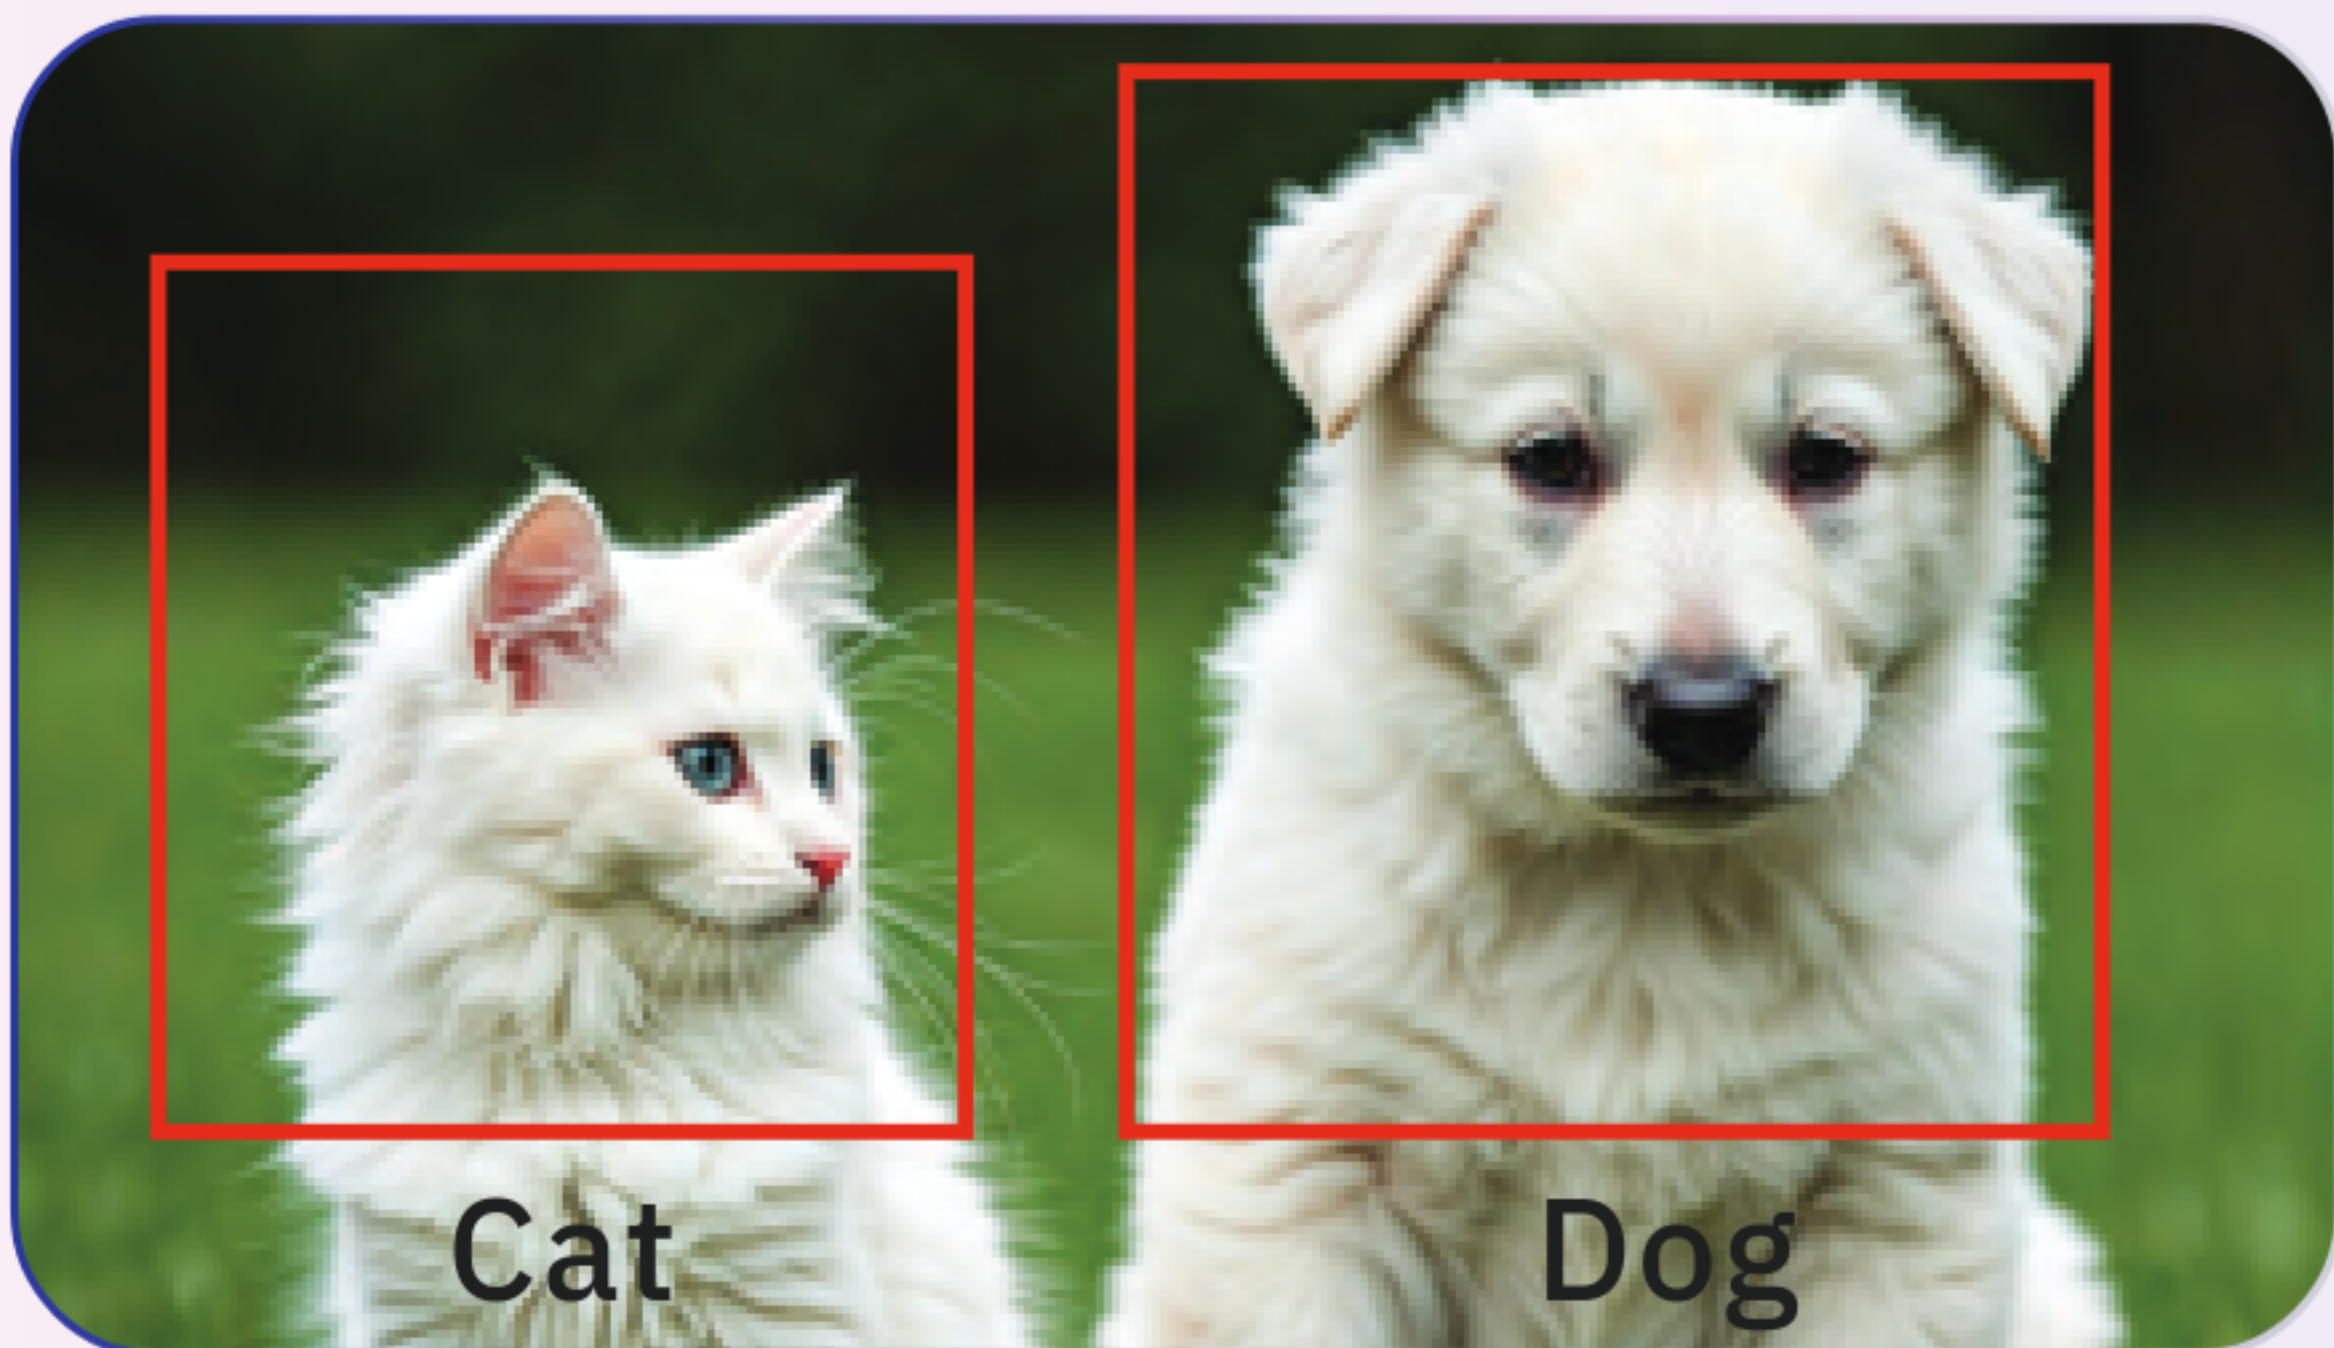

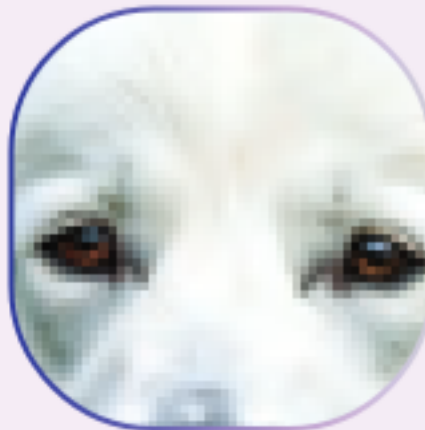

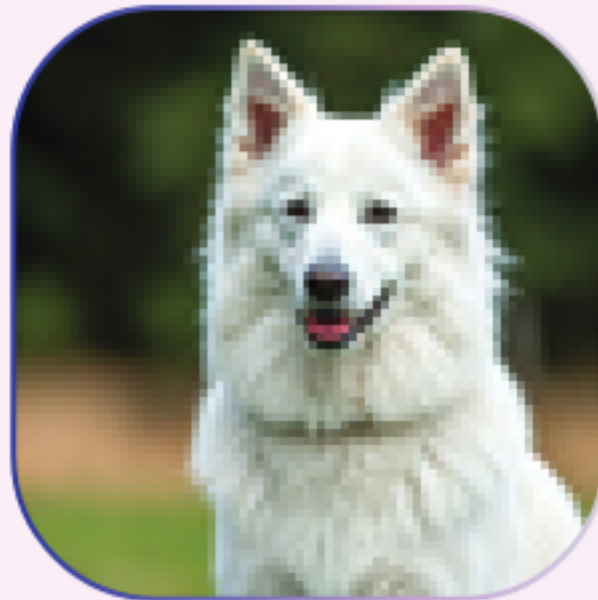

Cat

Dog

Training Data

Cat

Dog

Input Data

Model Learning

Decision Making

Data Generation

Output