

You think the issue was that you chose country music, which has more old-school cowboy voices. This time, the genre was indie-pop, dreamy.

Lyrics got mixed up in the version

You thought the lyrics got mixed up in the first version. So, take a listen to the second version.

Final version

These songs sounded really nice, considering that it was a robot singing them. However, you thought that they were off the mark in terms of getting the right genre required for the right song. That is something that can be fixed with better prompts. If you are familiar with music and its various technicalities, you should try out which prompts work best.

The tools discussed for text-to-voice can be used for branding as well as marketing purposes. So, please try them out.