

3. Training and Education

You should train your employees, as well as your management, on AI oversight. This will help your organisation gain the skills necessary to supervise AI systems effectively, thereby improving the system's reliability.

You can invest in training programmes that cover the fundamentals of AI technology, its potential pitfalls, and the specific oversight techniques necessary to manage AI operations.

