

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

First things first, let me acknowledge my family—my pillars, my cheerleaders, and occasionally my favorite critics. My amazing wife, Roshni, who has patiently tolerated my endless AI talks (and probably knows more about AI now than she'd ever care to admit), and my two little bundles of joy and chaos, Ruhaan and Rumi, who've been my inspiration and distraction in equal measure.

A special heartfelt thank you to my parents, Vijay Motwani and Hema Motwani. Although they're no longer here, their blessings and values have guided every step I've taken. Mom and Dad, I hope I made you proud.

To my incredible in-laws—my father-in-law Dr. KG Tarani and my mother-in-law Asha Tarani—thank you for your constant encouragement and endless support. Huge shout-out to my brother-in-law, Sagar Tarani, who joined me on this wild ride of workshops and AI adventures. Sagar, I owe you for all the coffee breaks and moral support. And to my sister-in-law, the super-smart data scientist Kanchan Tarani, who nudged me into this fascinating AI universe—your advice literally changed my life's algorithm!

To my buddies who have been with me through thick, thin, and everything awkwardly in-between: Neil Dodhia and Nikhil Dani—you guys are the real MVPs! Varun Rupani—thank you for relentlessly bugging me to write this book; you guys truly know how to nag someone into action. Vijay Rajani & Ankith Vira, cheers to all those nostalgic college days that still bring a smile to my face.

Lastly, a massive thank you to every student, faculty member, peer, mentor, friend, trainer, and coffee-provider who supported me in ways big and small. Special thanks to Dr. Arpit Yadav—my AI savior and partner in crime—thanks for always being one quick call away whenever I was stuck in a seemingly impossible loop.

This book wouldn't exist without all of you amazing people. If you loved this book, the credit goes to them. If you didn't, well, you know whom to blame!

With loads of gratitude and laughter,
Hitesh Vijay Motwani