

It even gave you a placeholder for the brand name since you did not input this information. The post is now more concise, direct, and much more professional. There are three types of prompting. We can summarise these three types of prompts as follows:

AI is given a task without prior training. Here, you rely on pre-trained data or the intelligence of the AI tool to provide you with the output.

Zero-Shot Prompt

AI is provided with examples and context to understand and perform a task better. Here, you have to provide key details about the task.

Contextual Prompt

AI is asked to act like a particular person. You can ask the bot to adopt the personas of people whose designations could be marketing heads, copywriters, etc.
