

3.5 Final thoughts

This chapter was all about prompt engineering. You should try the same technique for any content style. Whether you are writing an email, social media post, blog post, process improvement document, or building standard operating procedures (SOP) for your organisation or any other type of content, you can use these techniques.

You just need to understand the methodology and use it regularly to develop a certain skill level.

Prompting is an art. It can only be learnt by practice, so please practice. The more you practice, the more you come to know about it.

