

- ♦ Plastic surgeons providing nose-resaping surgery, ear-resaping surgery, tattoo removal, facial contouring, chemical peels, and permanent hair removal
- ♦ Dermatologists providing mole removal, cosmetic surgery, acne treatment, freckle removal, and electrolysis
- ♦ Allergists providing treatment for fatigue, rashes, hives, itching, allergy-related mood swings and depression, food allergies, learning disabilities, and new house sickness
- ♦ Psychologists providing career counseling, academic and career assessment, treatments for attention deficit disorder, treatment for compulsive eating disorder, shyness and assertiveness conditioning, and intelligence and aptitude testing
- ♦ Psychiatrists providing treatment for stress and anxiety, drug and alcohol abuse, school stress, and panic disorders
- ♦ Chiropractors providing treatment for stress relief and head, neck, and lower-back pain

ASSET LIQUIDATORS, FACILITATORS, AND APPRAISERS

Not all intergenerational gifts are in the form of cash or its equivalents. Gifts to adult children and grandchildren are often in the form of private/family businesses, coin collections, stamp collections, gems and precious metals, timberland, farms, rights to oil and gas properties, personal real estate, commercial real estate, gun collections, porcelains, antiques, art, motor vehicles, furniture, and the like. Often the recipients of these items have little or no interest in them and want to transform them into cash immediately. They will need experts to advise them of the true value of the gifts or how to sell them, manage them even for short periods of time, or enhance their value. Specialists who will benefit include:

- ♦ Appraisers and auctioneers providing valuation/appraisal services and sales of a variety of personal and other assets, such as those listed above