

The Commandment of Control

There is no dependence that can be sure but a dependence on one's self.

~ JOHN GAY

DEMAND THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Yes or no. You're either driving the Fastlane or you aren't. You're either in control over your financial plan or you aren't. There is no in between. And if you're not driving, you're sitting in the passenger seat and someone else is in control.

Envision your dream car, boat, or plane. Great, now here are the keys. You get it for one hour, unencumbered. Would you grab those keys and take it for a joyride, using every single minute? Or would you plop your butt down in the passenger seat and resign, "Ehh, you take control, I'll sit in the passenger seat and hitchhike a ride." Senseless? Not exactly. This is how many people approach business: They hitchhike, they give up the driver's seat, and they violate the Commandment of Control. In doing so, they sacrifice control over their financial plan and ultimately make someone else rich.

HITCHHIKING A FASTLANE

While hitchhikers of life tread the Sidewalk and are victims, the hitchhikers of business violate the Commandment of Control.
