

Your boss emits a guttural groan. He lurches forward, ends his recline and hammers his hands to the desk. “OK, what’s the joke? I’m busy” he snipes.

You reply, “No joke. I’m serious. I make $9 an hour. I want a raise to $90 an hour.”

“How about this? You’ll get nothing and like it. Get out of my office, quit wasting my time, and if you do it fast, I won’t fire you. How about that for an offer?”

You stammer out. I guess the boss didn’t think the 1,000% pay raise was doable.

This scenario would never happen. As an employee, you can’t demand a pay raise greater than 10%, let alone 1,000%. Yet, as an employee of any company, this is your playing field. Your value is dictated and the job becomes a wealth delimiter with limitations that cannot be subverted.

A job seals your fate into a criminal time trade: five days of life traded for two days of freedom. A job chains you to a set grade of experience. A job takes away your control. A job forces you to work with people you can’t stand. A job forces you to get paid last. A job imposes a dictatorship on your income. These limitations are counter-insurgencies to wealth. Still want a job?

CHAPTER SUMMARY: FASTLANE DISTINCTIONS

- In a job, you sell your freedom (in the form of time) for freedom (in the form of money).
- Experience is gained in action. The environment of that action is irrelevant.
- Wealth accumulation is thwarted when you don’t control your primary income source.
