

Nobody Is Perfect	108
Pascal's Wager	109
Thank You Solon	110
PART II: MONKEYS ON TYPEWRITERS - SURVIVORSHIP AND OTHER BIASES	111
It Depends On the Number of Monkeys	114
Vicious Real Life	115
This Section	115
Eight: Too Many Millionaires Next Door	117
How To Stop the Sting of Failure	117
Somewhat Happy	117
Too Much Work	118
You're a Failure	119
Double Survivorship Biases	120
More Experts	120
Visibility Winners	122
It's a Bull Market	122
A Guru's Opinion	123
Nine: It Is Easier To Buy and Sell Than Fry an Egg	125
Fooled by Numbers	127
Placebo Investors	127
Nobody Has To Be Competent	128
Ergodicity	129
Life Is Coincidental	131
The Mysterious Letter	131
An Interrupted Tennis Game	132
The Birthday Paradox	132
It's a Small World!	132
Data Mining, Statistics, and Charlatanism	133
The Best Book I Have Ever Read!	134
The Backtester	134
A More Unsettling Extension	136

The Earnings Season: Fooled by the Results	136
Cancer Cures	137
Professor Pearson Goes to Monte Carlo (Literally): Randomness Does Not Look Random!	139
The Dog That Did Not Bark: On Biases in Scientific Knowledge	140
I Have No Conclusion	141
Ten: Loser Takes All – On the Nonlinearities of Life	142
The Sandpile Effect	142
Enter Randomness	144
Learning to Type	144
Mathematics Inside and Outside the Real World	146
Buridan's Donkey or the Good Side of Randomness	147
When It Rains, It Pours	148
Eleven: Randomness and Our Brain: We Are Probability Blind	149
Paris or the Bahamas?	149
Some Architectural Considerations	150
From Psychology to Neurobiology	152
Our Natural Habitat	153
Kafka in a Courtroom	154
An Absurd World	156
Kahneman and Tversky	157
Neurobiology	158
Examples of Biases in Understanding Probability	159
We Are Option Blind	160
Probabilities and the Media (More Journalists)	162
CNBC at Lunch Time	163
You Should Be Dead by Now	163
The Bloomberg Explanations	164
Filtering Methods	166
We Do Not Understand Confidence Levels	168
An Admission	168