TOO MANY MILLIONAIRES NEXT
DOOR

Three illustrations of the survivorship bias. Why very few people should live on Park Avenue. The millionaire next door has very flimsy clothes. An overcrowding of experts.

How To Stop the Sting of Failure

SOMEWHAT HAPPY

Marc lives on Park Avenue in New York City with his wife Janet and their three children. He makes $500,000 a year, give or take a boom or a recession – he does not believe that the recent spurt in prosperity is here to last and has not mentally adjusted yet to his recent abrupt rise in income. A rotund man in his late forties, with spongy features that make him look ten years older than his age, he leads the seemingly comfortable (but heckled) life of a New York city lawyer. But he is on the quiet side of Manhattan residents. Marc is clearly not the man one would expect to go bar-hopping or attend late night Tribeca and Soho parties. He and his wife have a country house and a rose garden and tend to be concerned, like many people of their age,
