

Taxation

Most companies are taxed on the profits that they make. It must be remembered however, that taxes are payable on the taxable income or profit and this can differ dramatically from the accounting income or profit. This is because many amounts legitimately expensed may not be tax deductible. Conversely, income such as agricultural income is not taxable.