

nights and weekends spend editing and refining its content. Scott would also like to thank his parents, Lynne and Randy, and his brother, Rusty, for their unwavering support through thick and thin.

Mindy would like to thank her husband, Carl, for his help with managing the day to day while she wrote this book, as well as her daughters Claire and Daphne for being cooperative and patient with dad's cooking during this time. Mindy would also like to thank her parents, Harry and Jacke, for helping her buy that first house that caused this real estate obsession.