

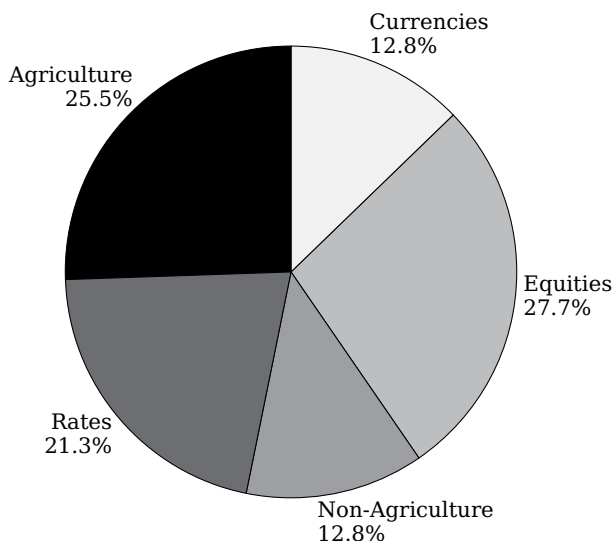

FIGURE 6.110 Sector allocation 2020.

This year started out in quite a worrying fashion, in particular in the light of our past five years and the pressure is on us at this point. We saw some larger swings and losses down to -17% at the start of March (Figure 6.111). This was, of course, a year like no other, and your memory of the events here are probably quite different depending on where in the world you were at the time. For me, being in Switzerland, I remember it very clearly. In January, there were minor news stories about yet another virus in some faraway part of the world. The story continued into February, but even at the start of March this wasn't anything of real importance to us

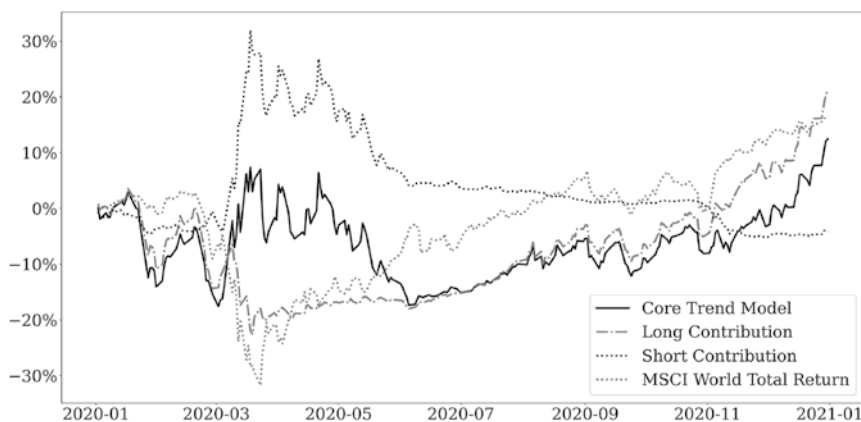

FIGURE 6.111 Strategy performance 2020.