

both managed to out perform the broader market. Whether they increase or decrease the dividend payout, the stocks that give a regular income will be able to outperform the general market substantially. If you have done enough research, you can always find good stocks to invest in, which not only assure very good dividends but also can help you realize capital gains in case you need to at some date. Experts like Robert Kiyosaki believe that we should never sell either real estate or stocks because they are the source of incoming cash flows. If you have invested enough for incoming cash flows, you will do quite well even in challenging economic times and market conditions. This is also evident from the graphs in Fig 3.6. Some of the Indian stocks that yield good dividends are mentioned here: