

This is the day I have been waiting and planning for a long time now. I am excited and thrilled to have achieved the biggest goal of my life – being a full time father, husband and son... Yes! I have done it!

My kids will not go to tuitions, no way! I will be there to guide them through school 24X7. I will be there to tell them not one but ten stories a day. I will be in the park playing badminton and tennis with them not only on Sundays but any day THEY choose! I will be the only father to drive them to school, not only on the day they are late, but everyday... Of course I missed their chatter all through those years when I had to go to office and they had to go in their school bus, but now we can share all our dreams together!

My wife will finally have a full-time husband and my parents, a full-time son. They need not go for their routine checkups in public transport... they will always have me at their disposal.

My wife will now never have to go shopping alone. I will be right by her side.

Do you think I can make all this possible because I am retired? No, I am simply financially free! I can do not only what I want... but also what my family wants. We longer have to watch Disneyland or Hollywood on images and television screens; we can be right there to experience it live.

Today, I write this from the side of my private pool with a mug of beer in my hand. But you know what the best part is? I don't even have to go to work tomorrow! All because I have now earned enough to be free! I can sit here and enjoy myself as long as I like.

Yes, I had my share of pains and struggle to reach where I am today. But now I realize that every bit of it was worth the effort. I see a world free of EMIs, Credit Cards, and forced jobs. I am ready to experience and enjoy my long forgotten hobbies like playing the guitar-something I could never complete. I am even going to enroll my wife and myself in Salsa classes - we so love to dance, you see!

The satisfaction I get today is born of both the freedom of money and of time, and also the string of options that they bring along with
