I AM A FREE MAN

There was a huge round of applause as I ended this speech. But more than the round of applause, I was happier seeing the cheerful faces of the audience. I have seen many leadership talks so I know that most of the time it is customary to applaud the speaker. But the cheer and smile on the faces of the audience told me a completely different story. I was becoming more and more convinced that we all are missing this 'FREEdom' in our lives. If the mere thought and a five minute journey to personal freedom could take the audience to such levels of bliss and happiness, I could imagine what living that goal could do to them.

Most people in the audience could relate to the passion and emotion in my speech, and what freedom could bring to their own lives, only if they could somehow achieve it. All they needed was someone to show them the path.

Why did I share this with you?

To make you realize that even a common person like you and me has a right to dream and transform that dream into reality. Doubtless, it needs planning, discipline, commitment and sacrifice, but "it is possible". It is a choice and we can make that choice.

I will be the first person to tell you that I love money and also the one to ask you – Who does not? I am here to tell you that you can go on to enjoy the beauty of financial freedom irrespective of what stage of life you are in today or the present financial status of your portfolio. Financial freedom is within the reach of each one of us.

But before we get into how to go about achieving this, let us spend a little bit of time to pause and think – what do we expect money to do for us?
