

quality educational and entertainment programs. They can enrich our lives and contribute meaningfully to our purposes and goals.

Like our physical body, television is a good servant but a poor master. This essentially means that if we take control of our body and do the right things with it, it can yield immense results. It is the same with television. If we take control and watch the right things on television, it can be truly beneficial. So, if you have control, these things are good servants. But if you allow them to become your masters and let them decide things on your behalf, then they are real trouble.

There is no better way to inform and expand your mind on a regular basis than to get into the habit of reading good literature. I would encourage you to go through the book, Seven Habits of Highly Effective People by Stephen R Covey. I highly recommend starting with a goal of a book a month, then a book every two weeks, then a book a week. I usually share and publish my annual goals with my blog readers. Those who are subscribed to my blog (elevate-your-life.blogspot.in) would know that I always target to read 50 books a year. I may not succeed every year, but I try and reach as close as I possibly can, and reading good books on the right subjects have had a great positive influence on my life till date.

As they say,

“The person who doesn't read is no better off than the person who cannot read.”

Quality financial literature, like financial newspapers –online or physical, subscriptions to financial magazines, regular monitoring of the stock situation, a regular check on your portfolio balance, learning new financial terms are some of the things that can expand our paradigms and sharpen our financial saw as we read and seek first to understand. Today, the options are unlimited. You can also subscribe to online journals which advice you on good financial practices⁴⁹ directly in your mail box.

If we deduce before we really understand what an author has to say, we limit the benefits of the reading experience. Go ahead, subscribe to a magazine, read a book on financial knowledge and start the journey of enriching your mind as you apply these concepts in your day to day life.