

happen if the problem persists, and so on. Rather, they will work on finding out what they need to do to mitigate the problem itself, and how to prevent this problem from re-appearing in the future. They always want to be a part of the solution. This is so aptly referred to as 'Champions Attitude' by Michael Phelps in his autobiography "No Limits".

Learning orientation: Success and wealth come in part from minimizing the inefficiencies of trial and error, both through learning from others and learning from your own experiences. Learn not only through your successes but also through your failures. In fact, as you will read in one of our other bestselling books "Dream On", failures are essential to achieve big goals and accomplish extraordinary dreams, since it is failures that prepare you for the big occasion.

Passion: Love your work, set meaningful goals, like what you do and do what you like. That is what most wealthy people do.

Imagination: Make timely and appropriate changes in your thinking, plans, and methods. Show creativity by thinking of new and better ideas, and solutions to problems. Be innovative. There is no need to follow the herd blindly.

Courage: Have the perseverance to accomplish a goal, regardless of the seemingly insurmountable obstacles. Display a confident calmness when under stress. Read our other bestselling book "Happiness Unlimited" and chart a new life for yourself – a life full of courage and fearless living.

Dedication: Spend whatever time or energy is necessary to accomplish the task at hand.

Four Levers

Understanding Four Levers to Wealth creation helps us manage our wealth prudently and gives us the right perspective towards Income, Expenses, Taxes and Returns on our investments. As you would see, all levers are important but Lever 4, which is usually paid the least attention, turns out to be your biggest lever