

or not. If it is, if your dreams are important, if your goals are different from others, you will have to do things differently.

I still remember some instances, which made me think and ultimately made me focus more on my goals. I have no hesitation reproducing some of these incidents here. There were times when my colleagues in office, would show me their new car and their new mobile phones. I was even supervising some of these colleagues. Some of them even went to the extent of telling me that it was high time I bought a new car or the latest mobile phone. They even told me that my current car and phone do not suit my stature. I had to simply listen to them and smile. This became possible without causing me undue stress because the only thing that I focussed on at that time was my goal, my dream in life.

There were instances when my neighbours bought better cars than I did. It is not that I could not afford one or would not enjoy having one. Who does not like to give himself and his family all the comforts that one could afford. I was definitely earning more than my colleagues and neighbours. But the question was of happiness. Being financially stable and approaching my goals in life gave me a different kind of joy and happiness. I could stand all that because I was passionate and focused about my goals.

It is therefore important to remember why you are doing what you are doing. Why do you want to be financially free? You need to have passion and love for your final goals, as in difficult times, it is the vision of your ultimate life goals that will lead you to the right decisions and response today.

If you are married and have children, make sure that you openly discuss your goals and dreams with your spouse and children. Share how you intend to achieve these goals in your life and how this will impact them in future.

There are many strong reasons to do this, first and foremost is the fact that you cannot complete this journey without their support. During the times when you manage with an old car, your family also has to sacrifice. However, if they are not clear on the reason for this, they may not appreciate the struggle and therefore may not like it. The journey will actually become very difficult without their active support and involvement.
