

/ Expenses. As an example, we may have covered ourself with all regular expenses but our child's marriage is likely to come as an additional 'high ticket' expense in the future, over and above your regular expense. All such 'special future events' of our life are covered here in the worksheet by a similar name in our Step 3 file.

For each of the above three worksheets, we will feed the input data (some of which would come from Step 1 and Step 2 data) and we can expect the worksheet to tell us the output. There may be calculations and logic involved for the worksheet to throw an output. For the sake of your ease of understanding and avoiding unintentional errors, those formulae may be hidden in the online worksheet. However, if any of you want to understand the formulae or logic, we are more than willing to share those with you on request. There is nothing hidden, for our mission is to elevate the society around us, and anyone seeking knowledge is more than welcome to interact with our team.

Let us now take a detailed look at each of the above 3 worksheets one by one.

1. Nest Egg Calculator

Let us understand all the INPUTS needed by the 'Nest Egg Calculator' worksheet for it to tell us the nest egg required for financial freedom:

1. Freedom start year

- This is the year in which you attain your financial freedom
- If you are using the automated macro driven approach for Step 3, then you can ignore this number since this will be automatically calculated. However, if you are using a manual mode of calculation, then go ahead and, make a best guess and decide a freedom year for yourself. This year will get tuned and revised later in the Step 3 spreadsheet based on the results

2. Annual inflation rate

- This rate is extremely important to determine the continuing increase in your expenses every year. You
