

- Your Actual Asset Value may change on a monthly basis for some assets (like EPF) but may remain same for some other assets (like Real Estate).
- In any case, make sure that you invest and track the actual investments on a monthly basis.

4. Actual total nest egg amount at the end of each month

- The 'Total' column shows the total of all the assets (as on a month) in your portfolio. This is your actual Nest Egg Amount as on that month end.

5. Percentage achieved vs planned

- Comparing the actual nest egg amount with the planned nest egg amount for each month gives you an idea whether you are on track with your plan or not.
- If there is a negative deviation i.e., your actual investments are lower compared to whatever you planned, you may have to start thinking of innovative ways to get closer to the plan.
- If there is a positive deviation, then you are doing better than the plan.
- This column is an indicator of your performance in your journey. Your target every month is to always keep your performance as close to 100% as possible (or above 100% if possible)

Figure 7.14 is a snapshot of the detailed financial independence plan that I used to track for my progress on a monthly basis. While this Step 4 tracker allowed for monthly tracking, I would normally update this sheet at least 2–3 times a month and think of ways to earn more, save more, and get innovative to earn and save... and make sure that not only do I stay with the plan but go much ahead of it. Figure 7.14 on the following page shows the status as in the year 2014 (7 years after I started on my journey to financial freedom).

We have now created a detailed financial freedom plan. This Step 4 plan will be your partner for the rest of your financial freedom journey. This one sheet has the potential to convert your life from 'ordinary' to 'extraordinary'.

This Step 4 tracker will help you track the following:
