

You should continue to invest in all possible retirement benefits as per the policies of the company that you work with. Just make sure that you do not repeat the same mistakes as I did when I moved across companies. Never ever withdraw your EPF amounts before you get financially free, unless of course there is a life and death situation in your family. Compounding will need time to play its magic.

Make sure you transfer the money to your new organization's PF office or EPFO by filling in the correct forms at the right time. Never withdraw the PF funds. I made this mistake more than once before I realized that not only did I pay tax on the money I withdrew (because I withdrew within 5 years of investing) but soon spent the money in hand. I lost all benefits of compounding and spent the principle amount itself.

A word of caution on gratuity benefits — if you have worked with any organization for 3–4 years, see that you carry out all the calculations necessary regarding your gratuity benefits before you leave that
