

your company group insurance policy lapses. In fact, you must get into a health insurance agreement with a private health insurer around 2 years before your freedom date. This ensures that you are covered all the time, even during the usual waiting period for such health insurance policies.

Life Insurance

Once you become financially free, you will not need to spend any money on paying for your life insurance policies. This is simply because your family income is no more dependent on you or your active income – it is dependent on the corpus which you have accumulated, and the returns coming from it. So, go ahead and cancel all your life insurance policies – and save some more money !!

Retirement benefits

To get the best retirement benefits, it is advisable to collect the latest information and all details of the persons who deal with provident funds, gratuity and superannuation schemes; HR contacts, email addresses, phone numbers, addresses etc., of the key contacts within your company so that once you leave, it is not difficult for you to follow up on your retirement benefits.

Try a Leave Without Pay

If your organisation policy allows you, it is better to go for a few months of 'Leave Without Pay'. Go for 6 months if possible. This allows you to 'live' your financially free life. Check it out how it feels. For most seekers, if you had a clear passion identified, these 6 months will prove to be the most enjoyable experience.

But there may be some cases where passion is not clearly identified. Such freedom seekers may find this 6 months period uncomfortable. But do not worry. This is normal. Your mind is not used to thinking freely. Try and find
