

Michelle Kosch, Steve Kotsen, Kathy Landau, Michael Kantor, Harold Kobliner, Kenneth Kobliner, Miriam Diamond Kobliner, Perry Kobliner, Shirley Kobliner, Megan McCrudden, Carmen Morais, Vanessa O'Connell, Max Phillips, Melissa Phipps, Parker Reilly, Ruby Reilly, Mark Safire, William Safire, Rebecca Scott, Adam Benjamin Shaw, Jacob Samuel Shaw, Rebecca Belle Shaw, Jonah Sacks, Anne Morgan Spalter, Michael Spalter, Lisa Turvey, David Witt, and Dave Zinc-zenko.

I would also like to single out Jessica Ashbrook, Lisa Barron, Scott Martin, and Kerry Shaw, who have put in literally hundreds of hours helping me ensure that every data point in the new edition has been meticulously researched, checked, and rechecked. I am also especially indebted to Danielle Claro, whose insight, humor, and remarkable editing skills were, and continue to be, a godsend.

I owe gratitude to Simon & Schuster, notably to Sarah Pinckney Whitmire (my editor on the original version with Bob Asahina), Doris Cooper, the intrepid and talented Michelle Howry (my current editor), Christine Lloreda (who guided me through all three editions), Rachel Rader, Trish Todd, and Mark Gompertz. I would like to thank Gordon Kato, who believed in this book from the beginning, and Kate Lee of ICM as well as Suzanne Gluck of the William Morris Agency.

I want to thank Rebecca Belle, Adam Benjamin, and Jacob Samuel for being incredibly patient during late nights and worked weekends—and for making me laugh.

And most of all, I would like to thank my husband, David, who continues to offer complete, unwavering love and devotion. He is my inspiration.