

When markets don't DO THEIR JOB

A MARKET IS GENERALLY CONSIDERED A GOOD WAY OF DISTRIBUTING GOODS AND SERVICES TO THE PEOPLE THAT NEED AND WANT THEM. SUPPLIERS OFFER THEM FOR SALE, AND CONSUMERS BUY THEM—AND EVERYONE BENEFITS FROM THE TRANSACTION. BUT MARKETS DON'T ALWAYS WORK THAT EFFICIENTLY.