

In the news

TV, radio, and newspapers often employ a number of journalists with qualifications in economics to report on current affairs and offer an analysis of the news.

