

ZIMBABWE

For a decade from the late 1990s, Zimbabwe suffered perhaps the worst period of hyperinflation ever. It began shortly after private farms were confiscated and the government began printing money to counter the fall off in production. Very quickly, prices in stores were changing several times a day and notes became so devalued that people resorted to taking their money to market in wheelbarrows. In November 2008 inflation peaked at an amazing 79.6 billion percent.

“Inflation is as violent
as a mugger, as frightening
as an armed robber and as deadly as a hit man.”

RONALD REAGAN, US PRESIDENT 1981–1989
