

Managing your personal finances, running a household budget and generally looking after your money involves the same economic principles as running a business. How much you spend, what you buy and where you shop are all economic decisions. So, too, are the choices you make about your job, your leisure pursuits, and your plans for the future.